Grounds Report

October was especially busy but the weather was particularly nice for us to accomplish all that we did. The grass was still growing, and the leaves were falling all at the same time. We shut off the wells on Oct. 9th and drained the tank on Oct. 19th. During those 10 days, while we still had water in the system, the staff spent parts of every day washing and straightening crosses in preparation for Veterans Day. Once we were out of water, we began the process of blowing out all the irrigation systems and winterizing all the components and draining the tank and streams etc. This process takes two full weeks. (One week for rural cemeteries, and one week at Mt. Pisgah.) It was a blessing to not have to start or finish during a snowstorm like some years, but rather temps were in the 60s and 70s. The last high school seasonal employee has departed, so it's just full timers now. We then moved into removing annual flowers and cutting ornamental grasses and perennials down.

Cross repair volunteers

After 17 years of promises to assist staff with cross maintenance and repair, this fall a group of volunteers made good on that promise. Rod Warne and a group of volunteers inspected and repaired or replaced the end caps and flag holders on veteran crosses. We provided the supplies and they provided the time and labor and notified us of any repairs or replacements that they could not make while we handled the washing and straightening. This is a huge deal for us and after this first go around, it worked out perfectly. They did run us out of end caps, and we have more on order for another push in spring. A huge shout out to Rod and his team!

Wright Plat
The signed plat for Wright cemetery was delivered to the commissioner's office last month after our meeting. It hasn't shown up on their agenda yet for their approval, but I am hoping that occurs at one of their meetings in November. We will then be able to officially issue deeds that would be recordable at the courthouse for products in the new garden area.

Wright Garden Sign
With all the other work we focused on in October, we did not get the engraving done on the garden sign at Wright. We are limited by day and night temperatures for the curing of the ink in the engraving. We will circle back to this project in spring. Here is a copy of the artwork that will be engraved on the sign with the name chosen by the citizens of Wright.

Audit Update
The auditors will be coming to do their field work around the middle of November. They have provided us with a list of all the items to prepare for their visit. They also indicated that the final audit won't be ready by the December 2nd board meeting, so a special meeting will be required later in December to approve the audit.
